

Behavior Generator

In my role as a Caretaker, I allowed others to draw me into their story. I took responsibility for their results. I would physically move right next to them and absorb their issue and energy.

The new behavior I created using the Behavior Generator process is to back away from the person or raise my hands with palms facing them. Now I listen intently as they create the change they desire.